

- There are many ways to tune. It is also helpful to use electronic tuners when learning to play, however, I suggest tuning only ONE OCTAVE with the tuner, and tune the rest of the harp to that octave. When we learn about tuning from a visual aid, we end up tuning with our eyes instead of our ears. As you play your harp more you will become accustomed to hearing when the strings are out of tune, to low or to high.
- Tune the middle octave of the harp first. Sometimes students have a hard time hearing the pitch in the higher strings, so start in the middle, then go to the low octaves. Then tune the higher octaves.

Eighty percent of success is just showing up
Woody Allen

©2006 Enoch Productions/Star Edwards